Why Study This Course?

Business allows students to consider a wide variety of current issues of both a national and global nature. Careful thought will be given to the ways in which different business themes interact and the impact this has on decision making. In an increasingly competitive job market, work-related skills are vitally important. This course will develop valuable research skills, confidence with data handling, analytical and evaluative skills, alongside the ability to present written information logically. At least 10% of this course is assessed based on quantitative skills, so aims to use and enhance understanding towards data and financial capability.

Higher/Further Education & Career Links

Business Studies by its very nature develops in students a broad and varied skills base, increasingly sought by employers. This will prove equally useful to those entering employment or continuing into Higher Education on numerous courses of study such as in Business Studies, Accountancy, Law and Economics, or other subjects combined with Management. Potential career routes include Accountancy, Law, Leisure Management, Banking, IT, Engineering, Recruitment, Sales and Marketing.
